MFM NIH principal investigators are more likely to be women than men. However, men principal investigators are more likely to hold higher academic ranks than their women counterparts.